Research in Experimental Economics, Volume 8 (Research in Experimental Economics) R.M. Isaac
Volume 8 of Research in Experimental Economics provides a forum for papers incorporating laboratory experimental economics. These specifically include interdisciplinary papers, papers that report experimental design innovations, and papers that report detailed data. The paper by Isaac, Walker and Williams is an example. It discusses the design of instructional experiments in such areas as monopoly, asset trading double auctions, and public goods. The paper also examines practical issues of using laboratory experiments as a teaching tool. Subsequent papers report on various aspects of public goods research, and the volume concludes with two papers that use controlled experiments for testing policy-relevant allocation mechanisms.
