"Bristol from the Air" is the latest book in the highly successful "From the Air" series. Aerial photographer David Goddard has spent two years photographing the architecture, the festivals, the industrial infrastructure and the outstanding countryside that makes Bristol such a stunning area of Great Britain. "Bristol from the Air" is the stunning result of David's time featuring over 150 images from the city. During his research for this title, David contacted hundreds of people in Bristol for their suggestions for sites to be included in the book. The recommendations he received came from MPs, local historians, university lecturers and people in street. Highlights of this title include Bristol Cathedral, Clifton Suspension Bridge, Bristol Balloon Festival, numerous private and public historical houses, River Avon, the Chew Valley and many hidden or forgotten sites around the city.
